MELKSHAM with LACOCK.

A MARKET-TOWN on the Bath road, of some celebrity for its mineral springs, is 101 miles west of London, and 18 of Devizes, 29 north-west of Salisbury. It gives name to the hundred, petty sessions for which are held here monthly, and a court for recovery of debts every three weeks; is situated on the Avon, and consists of one well-paved street, nearly a mile long, and lighted with gas; the houses well-built of soft freestone, but irregularly placed. The river is crossed by a freestone bridge of four arches. There are two springs, a chalybeate, and a saline aperient, the latter discovered in boring for coal; and every accommodation is provided for the visitors their medicinal properties attract. The market is on Thursday, besides which there are large cattle markets every other Monday, and a cattle fair on the 27th of July. The extensive broad-cloth manufacture has much declined. It is a valuable vicarage, dean and chapter of Sarum; population 5866; assessed property 23,465*l*. The town contains four dissenting chapels, a Lancastrian and a small endowed charity school. This is a polling-place for the northern division of the county.

North of the town is Melksham forest; and about three miles higher up the Avon, embowered in lofty trees, in a fertile plain upon its serpentine banks, stands Laycock Abbey, one of the most perfect monastic remains in the kingdom.
